OREGON CENTRAL RAILROAD

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Mr SPEAKER —The special committee to whom was referred the Governor's special Message and the House Joint Resolution No —, on the subject of Railroads have had the same under consideration and beg leave to submit the following report with the accompanying bill to aid in the construction of the Oregon Central Railroad

For several years the question of constructing a railroad through the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys, has been very generally discussed before the people, some preliminary surveys have been made and much valuable information gathered upon the subject, but before this Legislature will adopt any legislation bearing upon the question it will doubtless be necessary to lay the important and material facts necessary to a proper understanding of the enterprise fully before the House, and to that end your Committee has directed its labors

That a railroad through the above named valleys is badly needed by the farmer and producer and in fact all classes of our population must be obvious to the most careless observer and the bare mention of a few facts is amply sufficient to set it forth in the strongest light

It is a well known fact that the wheat crop the great reliance of the Oregon farmer scarcely ever yields him one third the price it commands in the San Francisco market. In 1864, while wheat was selling readily for $2 00 in San Francisco it would bring the farmer but 75 cents in the Willamette Valley, and now when it is above $1 00 in San Francisco, it is dull sale at half that price here. The same inequality of prices will be found to prevail in all other articles of produce. It is absurd to expect our farmers to prosper and aid in developing our country as long as they are subjected to such disadvantages in competing with the farmers of California. And we cannot expect that other branches of business will prosper when the farmer is thus deprived of the profits of a good market for want of cheap transportation at all times. And as agriculture underlies the prosperity and wealth of the State, it is useless to hope for general prosperity unless we resort to the means which other States and countries employ—cheap and ready transportation to a sure market. In Southern Oregon the obstacles to the exportation of agricultural products are so great as to amount to a complete embargo; and such must forever continue to be the condition of that country, at least so far as the most profitable part of the farmer's labor is concerned, until the country is tapped by a railroad leading either to Portland or San Francisco. And as illustrating the necessity of a railroad connection to the people of the southern counties, we may mention the fact, ascertained from the books of the Commission Merchants at Crescent City, California, that the inhabitants of Josephine and Jackson counties have in a single year paid out as freight money alone, on 1,800 tons of merchandise imported the sum of $179 700. This large expenditure would be reduced fully three-fourths by the construction of a railroad, while it would give the people some opportunity to pay for this merchandise by the exchange of the produce of the farms while cheap goods and cheaper machinery would stimulate the production of the means immeasurably

These are some of the burdens that the farmers of Oregon are laboring under for want of railroad transportation. It is growing worse every year, and will continue to do so, for the plain reason that the State of California is fast completing its system of railroads, having now over three hundred miles in actual operation and hundreds more miles projected, by which the resources of every acre of the agricultural land of that State will be afforded the advantages of a railroad transportation to tide water, and thus giving the farmers of that State, such an advantage as will enable them to keep Oregon produce out of the markets of the world, until we, as a State, do for our farmers what California, as a State, has done for hers— in the construction of a system of railroads.

It is true that we have some steamboat transportation in this State. So had California; but unfortunately for the State, it was like the steamboat advantages which compelled California to build railroads. It can only be relied on in certain seasons of the year, which being the season of rain and mud compels the farmer to submit to any rate of charges and send his produce to market, it may be, at the very time when prices rule the lowest. The prices for steamboat transportation are generally felt to be onerous and burdensome, no matter whether they are as low as they might be or not, and the want of a railroad, is all the more keenly felt in order to afford that sure and permanent competition which always results in the prosperity of the country. As further illustrating the advantages of a railroad to the business of the country, we make the following extract from a report on this subject, by the Senate Committee on Corporations to the last Legislature

"The direct pecuniary advantages of a railroad through Oregon may be briefly but more clearly set forth by a little calculation. Statistics carefully prepared by reliable men show that Polk county has this year produced one million bushels of wheat. Suppose that six hundred thousand bushels of this crop could be spared to the San Francisco market. At the price heretofore prevailing since harvest this was worth in Polk county about seventy five cents per bushel, or $450,000. If there had been a railroad running through Polk county to steamship landing, this wheat would have sold in Polk county, readily, for $1 50 per bushel, or $900,000, making a clear gain of $450 000 to Polk county on a single crop of wheat, and leaving a margin of fifty cents per bushel to transport the wheat to San Francisco— and all the direct result of railroad transportation. This calculation might be applied to wool, bacon, lard, oats and especially to the article of hay. Oregon can ship no hay for want of means of transportation, while we have the ability and can produce the best hay in the world, and at a very large profit, if it could be cheaply transported to Portland

Owing to these burdens on Oregon farming, it is a notorious fact that California is now importing grain for feed from the Atlantic States cheaper than she can get it from the granaries of her neighbor, Oregon. Some persons are disposed to berate and belittle Oregon farmers for the want of energy in not supplying this San Francisco demand at such handsome figures, and our newspapers take up and echo the cry "No energy, no industry," &c. and while it is true that Oregon farmers are no better than they ought to be, it is not true they will not be found lacking in energy and industry to supply San Francisco or any other good market, when the means for doing so is afforded them so they can compete on an equal footing with the farmers of California and the Eastern States."

FREIGHT AND PASSENGERS—RISE IN LANDS

One of the most striking and convincing proofs of the great value of railroad transportation, is to be found in the rapid development of the Western States, and especially in the increase of the wheat crop. In 1850, Wisconsin had no railways, and Illinois next to none. The wheat crop of Wisconsin that year was but 4,250 000 bushels, Illinois 9 500 000, of Pennsylvania, 15 500 000, and Pennsylvania was then the greatest wheat producer of all the States by 2,000 000 bushels. But from 1850 to 1860 Wisconsin and Illinois completed their thorough railroad system, which enabled them cheaply and readily to bring their grain to the markets of Milwaukie and Chicago and so in the year 1860, we find by the census tables, Wisconsin has produced 15,000 000 bushels of wheat. Illinois 25 000,000 bushels and Pennsylvania but 13 000 000 bushels. During the ten years between 1850 and 1860 there was a falling in the wheat production of the Atlantic States while at the same time, almost wholly through the encouragement given to production by railway transportation the five great wheat States of the West, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan Wisconsin and Iowa increased in production 47,000 000 bushels per annum—over three hundred per cent on the products of 1850 was yielded in 1860, and what is most remarkable the price of wheat was nearly twice as high in the latter as in the former year. In the same States a similar increase is noted in almost every other agricultural production

As a natural sequence to such results in the production of a country, would be an enormous increase in the value of all real estate and other permanent property. Such is found to be the fact everywhere. The construction of a railroad has always increased the value of the land in any country through which it runs even in old settled countries not less than three fold and often quadrupled the returns on the assessor's list. But this is a fact so well known that it need not be dwelt upon

THE OREGON CENTRAL RAILROAD

We come now to consider a definite proposition. Through the efforts of a few of our citizens acting in conjunction with some railroad capitalists of California and aided by the Pacific coast delegation in Congress, a grant of twenty sections of public land per mile has been secured from Congress to aid in constructing a line of railroad from Portland Oregon, to the Central Pacific Railroad in California. It is made the duty of the Legislature to designate the Company which shall receive and manage so much of this land grant as lies within the State of Oregon. In view of these facts the following named gentlemen have incorporated themselves under the General Incorporation law of this State to wit J. S Smith, I R Moores, J H Mitchell, E D Shattuck, Jesse Applegate, Edward R. Geary, S Ellsworth and H W Corbett, under the name and style of "The Oregon Central Railroad Company," for the purpose of receiving the said grant of land, and using it so far as it may go, towards the construction of the proposed railroad passing through the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue river valleys. Under present circumstances the land is not available for the purpose of raising money one of the grant conditions being that twenty miles of railroad must be finished and put in operation before the Government patent will issue for the land. It would be unreasonable on our part to expect the Federal Government to construct our works of internal improvement, without the least effort on our part. We are also able to state that this corporation, composed of our own citizens, have received an offer from capitalists able to command the means to construct the road, that if the State of Oregon would render certain aid to the enterprise all the funds needed would be forthcoming. We are of the opinion that it is better for the State to aid the matter, in its collective capacity, than to rely on the uncertain aid of private individuals. The reasons for this are many and obvious. It is emphatically a work for the benefit of the whole State, and every man, woman and child in it. It will benefit all in proportion to their property, and it is but simple justice that the property thus benefitted should contribute its ratable proportion to secure a work of common benefit. We must offer some inducement for foreign capital to become associated in our interests

It cannot be expected that the money of our Oregon capitalists, readily yielding here twelve per cent, per annum, will desire or be willing to go into a great enterprise with capital which is satisfied with six and seven per cent per annum. For this reason we cannot rely on individual aid alone in the matter. The great profits and benefits of a railroad comes back to the people in that indirect way of increasing the value of their land, and raising the prices of their crops, rather than in dividends or subscriptions. Other States aid their railroads. In fact, it is the shape in which almost all the local aid is furnished. New York has been made the Empire State by a liberal policy toward its internal improvements, giving upwards of $20,000 000 to canals alone. Virginia has given six millions to railroads. Ohio gave many millions to the construction of its railroads and canals. The young State of Minnesota has contracted to loan its bonds to the railroads of that State, to the amount of $24 950,000. Missouri has already given $17 656,000 in State bonds to the railroads of that State, which liberal policy would ere this made her the Empire State of the West, but for the losses by the rebellion. California has contracted to pay the interest on $1,500,000 of the bonds of the Central Pacific Railroad Company. And so it is in every State that would keep up with the prosperity of the age. It is proposed by the Oregon Central Railroad Company, that if the Legislature will levy and appropriate, whenever a section of twenty miles of railroad is finished and put in operation, a sum of money sufficient to pay the interest on $500,000 of the company's bonds, and whenever one hundred miles is finished and put in operation, the additional sum sufficient to pay the interest on another $500 000 of the company's bonds, and so pay this interest for twenty years, and also loan the company the sum of ten thousand dollars for preliminary contingent expenses, the whole amount to be secured by a mortgage of all the company's property to the State, and to be returned at the expiration of the twenty years, then this company agrees to proceed at once to the work of constructing the road. After fully considering the matter, your committee are decidedly in favor of the proposition and have reported the accompanying bill to carry the same into effect.

Experience has shown in other States that such assumption of liability has not increased the rate of taxation on the property of tax-payers, and that the consequent increase of revenue growing out of the increase in the value of taxable property has more than compensated the interest assumed, and the States as well as the tax payers have been less burthened, besides becoming holders of good mortgage security for all the money advanced. In Santa Clara county, Cal., where the county had subscribed $100 000 in bonds, the interest on which amounted to $7,000 per annum, stating that the rate of taxes had not been increased. The town of Evansville, Indiana, subscribed $200 000 in bonds to the Evansville and Crawfordsville Railroad, and it was not necessary to increase the rate of taxes in order to pay the annual interest. H C Wait Register of the U S Land Office at St Cloud Minnesota, states that the taxes have not been increased by reason of the aid furnished railroads by that State. The Secretary of the State of Wisconsin reports that a large amount of the counties and towns of that State aided in their corporate capacity in the construction of railroads in that State but that in no instance was it necessary to increase the rate of taxation in order to pay the annual interest on the bonds. In 1852 the State of Illinois issued its bonds to the amount of $12 000 000, taking therefor stock in the railways projected in that State, and although the interest on this vast amount of indebtedness amounted to $840 000 annually, yet such was the rapid increase of property on the tax roll that it was not necessary to increase the rate of taxation to pay it. The revenue from taxes on the increased value of property occasioned by these railroads has already enabled the State to pay off more than $4,000 000 of the principal debt, and it is now believed that the remainder will be extinguished by the year 1876, without even increasing the rate of taxation from the time the $12,000,000 bonds were first issued, until they are finally paid and cancelled. This is a great historical fact in the growth of this country, and assures us of our duty in going forward to do something for the State of Oregon

If Oregon gives the aid to this Railroad proposed by this Bill it will be necessary to pay $70 000 per annum as soon as 100 miles of road is finished. Then how will the taxes stand? One hundred miles of railroad will add to the tax list, first, its own cost—not less than $4 000 000, secondly, not less than $15,000,000 on the increase of value of land and all other property, aggregating an addition of nineteen million dollars to the assessable property of the State. At five and a half mills on the dollar, the present rate for State taxes, this railroad addition to the tax roll would produce $104 000 annually—$34 000 more than is asked for by the proposition submitted so the argument is in favor of granting the aid asked for to build the railroad.

Your Committee recommend the passage of the accompanying bill

LINCOLN'S ORATION AT GETTYSBURG —Speaking of Abraham Lincoln's oration at the consecration of the burial ground at Gettysburg the Westminster Review says

It has but one equal—in that pronounced upon those who fell during the first year of the Peloponnesian war and in one respect it is superior to that great speech. It is not only more natural fuller of feeling more touching and pathetic but we know with absolute certainty that it was really delivered. Nature here fairly takes precedence of art even though it be the art of Thucydides

THE RIGHT SORT —A gentleman who holds a federal office acted as secretary of the late Republican Convention of Washington county. He writes "I expect to be removed. I cannot afford to lose my place because I need its salary to support my family. But I value principle and honour more than bread and butter, and will not surrender them." Probably our classical President would call him a "subsidized" and mercenary whelp."

Immigration

Though many schemes have been suggested at various times to induce immigration to the Pacific coast none have been followed by considerable results. Fifteen or twenty years ago the immigrant was allured hither by a knowledge that a beautiful and fertile country with a salubrious climate awaited his coming and that on his arrival the choice of a home in a region not surpassed in natural advantages by any country in the world lay open before him. But advantages just like these do not now offer. The country is not densely populated it is true but the desirable lands are all occupied or claimed. While placer mining was at its height in California that State needed no "Bureau of Immigration" to send it population. The advantages which California offered were supposed to be sufficient to repay the immigrant for his toil in reaching her fields of gold. So of Oregon a few years ago the pioneer who knew that the country "was all before him where to choose his place of rest," did not hesitate to come. Immigration is slower now than it was then because the inducements to come do not present themselves in so strong a light as they once did. It is still a great task to reach Oregon from the Atlantic States or the Mississippi valley—come how you will. Those in the East who are looking toward the West for homes, balance in their minds the labor and danger, and expense of reaching here with the advantages they suppose they would be likely to obtain on their arrival, and finding them, as they think, disproportionate turn to the nearer settlements west of the Mississippi for permanent homes. But that country, only a few years ago unoccupied, is now becoming crowded with population, and the East must look still further west for homes for its own people who are in want of them, and for those who are yearly flocking in countless multitudes from the various countries of Europe. The Pacific coast will receive larger additions to its population than heretofore now that other portions of the country easier of access and but just now inviting immigration, are becoming densely populated. The rapidly increasing population of the East and of the Mississippi valley must have room, and at a time not distant its waves will overspread this country also. The Pacific Railroad, certain to be completed in a very few years, will make transit easy from East to West and every part of these shores that will afford a place for settlement will be filled with a busy population. The present drawback is the difficulty and expense of getting here. Commissioners of Immigration and Aid Societies, though they may do something, can never accomplish all we want. The Pacific Railroad will do it, and for it we must wait as our great "Aid Society." True, we may expect some accessions by immigration on the old method, but the great bulk of the population which will one day fill Oregon and California will come by Railroad. We shall have to wait not for the wagon, but for the rail car.

Rewards for the Faithful

Rumors are in circulation here, chiefly among the long suffering and patiently waiting Democracy, that there is to be an immediate sweep of all the Federal office holders in the State. Certain it is that there are large numbers of very hungry expectants who haven't had office for fully five years. There surely must be something in the wind, else why so much commotion all on a sudden about this interesting matter? The instincts of the Democracy cannot mislead them. Like a flock of ravenous fowl lured to a battle field, they are "sagacious of their quarry from afar." It is asserted positively that heads will begin to fall soon. A. Johnson, "with that two-handed engine," stands ready to smite. Well, let the blows fall! "Who's afraid?" The traitors at the "Northern end of the line" can stand it. And as the decapitation is to begin, Johnson ought, for the credit of his Administration, to make the very best appointments he can. Let him reward the faithful for devotion and long waiting. Jo Teal ought to have an office, as his Democracy is of the most approved stamp. We all remember the test by which he was proved last spring. Then "Col" John [illegible] should by all means be comfortably provided for. Ben Hayden needs a clean shirt, and many others need the assistance of the Democratic almoner at Washington. We hope to see provision made for them at once. In California the guillotine is in operation. Many heads have been lopped off. Some of the new appointees are men who once said that Johnson was a "drunken boor," but what signifies that delicate compliment now? In the success of these patriots the Oregon Democrats may see signs of hope for themselves. Let them continue both to prophesy and to send somebody up regularly to look for the cloud that is to bring the long promised shower.

The Railroad.—We publish to-day the report of the Special Committee of the Legislature on the Oregon Central Railroad. It is a strong argument in favor of the enterprise. Many of its points are worthy of the attentive consideration of the whole people of the State. One principal fact which is clearly brought out in the report should be especially examined, viz. That though it will cost a great deal of money to build the road, and though the State will be required, on the plan suggested, to assume liabilities of considerable amount, the rate of taxation on the property of the State will not be permanently increased; but on the contrary the increase of taxable property caused by the construction and operation of the road, will in a very brief time more than compensate for the the small advance in taxes which such assumption by the State will temporarily produce. The whole report is evidently prepared with much care, and we commend it to the attention of all who feel an interest in this most important of Oregon's enterprises.

The Alta California, Copperjohnson, catches eagerly at every straw to hold up the sinking weight of "my policy." It notices the late speech of Senator Corbett in this city and intimates that he, through indorsing the Constitutional amendment, may be a Johnson man, "as there is nothing in that amendment inconsistent with conservatism!" What disgusting fools these Copperjohnsons do make of themselves, to be sure. They appear too, to be utterly insensible of the universal contempt in which they are held. A while ago their Convention pronounced the provisions of this amendment "humiliating to the South," now there is "nothing in it inconsistent with conservatism." In the conduct of these miserable shufflers there is everything inconsistent with common sense.

A New York letter states that Hoffman, Copperhead candidate for Governor of New York expects to get an immense majority about the rum holes and sinks of iniquity in the metropolis, but that in the rural districts, where the mothers call their boys John, Samuel and Billy instead of Hans, Patrick or Giuseppe and where the people snuff the odor of violets and of new mown hay, instead of the reeking stench of gin mills and ale houses the Republicans are confident that they will realize large gains over the vote of [illegible]

We have not observed that the Legislature has passed an act nullifying the Civil Rights law abolishing the present system of Federal taxation and abrogating the law exempting U. S. bonds from taxes, all of which was recommended by the Herald the other day. The Legislature seems to be slow to reach the "work" that paper laid out for it.

OUR SALEM LETTER

Salem Oct 11 1866

Editor Oregonian:

My last letter had something to say about Humason's resolution declaring as the sense of the House that the constitutional amendment was ratified by fraud, and Rosenheim's connection with their passage. It will be recollected that when the vote was taken on their adoption several Union men were absent on committee business. Upon their return they recorded their votes all except Mr White in the negative. He recorded his vote for the resolutions in order to move a reconsideration, which he did on the following day and with the vote of Rosenheim his motion was sustained. The subsequent defeat of Humason together with his strategic resolutions has already been made known through the Legislative reports. The Copperheads felt very sore over it, and cursed the "d—d Jew"—as they called Rosenheim—in the roundest terms known to the Long Tom dialect. All parties curse him without stint and his position here has really become pitiable. Pariah-us and treacherous to the Union party he lost the respect of Union men. Failing to keep his perfidious faith with the Copperheads they curse him even more vehemently if possible than do the others. The poor fellow is literally between two fires that scorch and sear him alternately according as he votes on the one side or the other. One day his Union friends have his ear and for that day he votes right and promises to keep right; the next day perhaps the Copperheads get hold of him and so paint to him his utterly lost condition so far as standing in the Union party is concerned, and so persuade him that he has nothing to hope except by joining with the Democracy, that the poor football allows himself to be played for that day by the Copperheads. It is a standing bitter joke with both sides that "Rosenheim belongs to us to-morrow—you had him to-day."

One day last week Mr Olney rose to a question of privilege, calling the attention of the House to "Our Salem Letter" in the Oregonian regretting that the press would not be more patient with members and withhold censure until the session should end so that all the acts of each might be taken together and a better judgment be made up. Mr Olney's views of the duty of a free press in a republican government are not perhaps exactly what he would have the House—or, more exactly speaking, Mr Rosenheim—believe. I can scarcely believe that Mr Olney would deny the right of the constituent to criticise the conduct of the representative, and yet that was the drift of his remarks. I am sure of one thing, that the people of Multnomah county will not refrain from expressing in the most emphatic manner their utter scorn and loathing for the man who has betrayed one of their highest trusts. If Mr Olney chooses to eat dirt from the spoon of the Rosenheim, he is welcome to the feast, but if the press decline to lick dust in that way, Mr Olney is scarcely enough of the lion in composition to roar it down anybody's throat. Mr Rosenheim took occasion to say that he was not to be deterred by newspaper abuse from doing what he thought dictated by a sense of duty. Sense of duty, in Rosenheim forsooth. Nobody suspects him of having any sense of duty, or more than a very little sense of any kind.

The House, "metaphorically" speaking, made an egregious ass of itself last week, about the message sent by Senator Dolph to Rosenheim just after he had voted for Humason's constitutional amendment resolutions. That the House should undignify itself enough to take any notice of what was patent as a mere piece of badinage, excited the most general surprise and contempt. It was getting lower down in tom foolery than the "Third House" ever got in its drunkest moments. Rosenheim, himself, probably never would have thought anything of it had not the nest of copperheads with whom he consorts, hearing of the message persuaded him that Mr Dolph meant him harm. The coppers thought there was capital in it, and no doubt invented evidence for Rosenheim that he was in personal danger. They befriended him by standing guard over him from Saturday night till Monday morning—pretendedly to defend him from a mob with Dolph and a rope at the head but really to keep him away from anybody who would be likely to tell the poor dupe that he was not born to be hung by a man without due authority of law.

The Polk county case has been finally set at rest. Rosenheim—confound the man, are we never to be done with him?—figured very conspicuously in that, too. He voted on the three several propositions—to oust Hall, to oust Dempsey and to admit Dodson—with the Copperheads on the two latter votes, being the only man elected by Union suffrages, who voted with them. These votes were announced from the chair as 22 to 21 to oust Dempsey and the same to admit Dodson. Dodson was then sworn in. The mistake in the tally was soon discovered and created a general hubbub, amidst which the House adjourned, and for a few moments a spectator, ignorant of what was transpiring, would have supposed from the excitement and commotion that not less than forty men were present who had each just lost a kingdom and forty more who had lost a Prime Ministership. The matter was straightened out the next morning, after an excited session which lasted till near one o'clock P. M., by a correction of the journals, which made the tally 22 to 21. Mr Dodson after being sworn in was therefore let out, having been a member of the Legislature long enough to vote on the question of adjournment only. The reason why Mr. Hall kept his seat was that, every Copperhead voted for it right or wrong, and several Union men who thought that when the contest was so close, and there was a doubt about two or three votes it was better to give the certificated member the benefit of that doubt. The latter voted to keep Hall in his seat satisfied that it were better to let the enemy keep his strength than to wrongfully deprive him of it. Those who voted to oust him were satisfied that he had been beaten by the legal voters at the polls. In the case of Dempsey, the case was quite different. Upon the evidence there was probably not a man who did not feel satisfied in his judgment that Mr Dodson was entitled to the seat. Yet every Copperhead voted to keep him out. It was a party duty to keep Dempsey in! Had he been proven defeated by a hundred votes at the polls, it would have been the same. In these votes, Rosenheim was the central figure as on his vote depended the result. What motive had he? It will perhaps appear to the "naked eye" when it is stated, that he declared, when Mr Upton's right to a seat was questioned and long before a word of evidence had been taken, that "there would be no more changes in the House." He did I am informed, say to a member nearly two weeks ago that the Polk county contest would depend on his vote and that "neither Mr. Hall or Mr Dempsey would be disturbed." When he said that not a word or letter of evidence had been taken. He had made up his mind without evidence. What induced him? I cannot undertake to say but the general belief is that his action on this matter is only a part of what was contained in the general agreement made with the Copperheads in the beginning of the session, as to the whole batch of contests. There are some who think that Rosenheim is controled by a certain other gentleman of the same persuasion who is depending on the Copperheads to save him in the enjoyment of a very profitable contract with the State. Their theory is that this latter person engages to run Rosenheim on the copperhead guage on all political questions in consideration of their votes against such measures as may be inimical to his pecuniary interests. The theory is not altogether a good one, for it does not explain Rosenheim's vote finally against Humason's "veto resolutions." Others, again, think Rosenheim has concluded to go back fully and firmly to the the Democracy whence he came. It is hardly worth speculating about, for the moment the session ends, he will be most emphatically a 'dead dog,' politically, to be kicked and spurned by both sides.

On Saturday a very laughable passage occurred in the House on the bill to appropriate money for the expenses of the joint committee to visit the Insane Asylum. The bill provides for the payment of $72 to the Messrs Durbin for carriage hire and $10 to each of the committee. The query naturally arose, if the committee were each paid ten dollars why the bill for transportation was so high. In explanation, it was stated that there were three wagons with eight horses. "What! said astonished members, to take a committee of six men!" It could not be put up in any other way without admitting that the bill was to cover the transportation of a dozen or so of gentlemen who did not belong to the committee. That would not do and so the committee have to stand all sorts of gibes about their transportation and per diem expenses to and from Portland. The members who did not go and have never seen Portland by gas light want to know what the $10 are for.

Preparations for the State Fair are actively going on and many persons who have stock to exhibit are daily arriving and pitching their tents. The race track is said to be in excellent condition and judging from the prevailing talk the races will be the principal attraction. Not more than a few ever speak about any other feature in anticipation. There will be no lack of outside amusements—circus, learned pigs negro minstrels revolving swings balloonists, organ grinders thimble riggers etc etc to catch the loose change which people may be inconsiderate enough to own and possess.

[Special to the Oregonian]

Legislative Proceedings.

Salem, Oct 11 1866.

The House to-day [illegible] orders. Bills [illegible] relating to private [illegible] to amend the charter of Oregon City and [illegible] to provide for the publication of the [illegible] jury [illegible] were passed.

In the Senate [illegible] regular business.

The two [illegible] arrested at [illegible] Bluffs [illegible] arrived here [illegible] stage.

A trotting race came off this afternoon [illegible] track between Emigrant and [illegible] for $[illegible]00. Emigrant won the race [illegible] 3:05 and [illegible]. Outsiders were disgusted with the [illegible] race a humbug.

Large numbers of visitors are arriving at the fair ground [illegible] the State [illegible] an unusually fine showing of horses and cattle. Nothing [illegible] in any other department has occurred. The arrangements [illegible] in many respects are greatly improved since last year. The city is full [illegible].

Letter from the Dalles

The Dalles Oct 11 1866

Editor Oregonian:—The last issue of the Mountaineer, Oct 12th contains quite a lengthy letter purporting to be from a Salem correspondent signed "Third House" in which the writer undertakes in his scattering way to impugn the motives and cast reflections on the political actions of Hon Z Donnell State Senator from this county, and Hon James M Pyle from Union county. As to Mr Pyle I believe him to be politically and socially honest, which is a great deal more than can be said of many of his assailants. So far as his constituents are concerned I know nothing but from what I know of his private character I have every reason to believe that he represented their wishes politically in every particular. As to Hon Z Donnell's misrepresenting his political constituents I can speak understandingly because I am one of them. And when I say that his actions in the Legislature now sitting, in a political point of view or otherwise, but reflect the sentiments and wishes of every reliable member of the Union party in this county I only reiterate the sentiments already expressed by them on this subject and when Mr "Third House" says that Hon. Z Donnell misrepresented his constituents in his actions relating to the election of U S Senator, or voted against the express wishes of those who elected him, he either states that which he knows nothing about or he has wilfully lied.

And further, Mr "Third House" you are mistaken in your man. If you had known Mr Donnell as long as I have you would have learned by this time that he is a man of his own head who thinks and acts for himself; for if he had not have been he would doubtless have voted for your "bread and butter candidate," James W Nesmith. That you belong to the "bread and butter brigade" is very evident from the fact of your hypocritically whining he misrepresented his constituents, and it is further evident from the amount of "calibre" exhibited in that celebrated "Salem correspondence." For it is a notorious fact that Nesmith's supporters were nothing but a set of very inferior political sea gulls, following along after him to pick up the crumbs which perchance or otherwise may fall from his hands.

Now, Mr Third House, if such you be let me suggest that you had better go home and attend to your own business as Mr Donnell is attending to his. If, however, you should happen to be a member of the Second House, I would further suggest that you turn your attention to legislation for your constituents and not squander their time in writing long frivolous and windy letters for publication.

Dilapidated Rebels Abroad.—Concerning noted rebels in England a late London letter remarks:

General Breckinridge with his family, has just arrived in London from Canada. The ex General and Secretary of War of the Confederacy looks old and careworn and seems to have lost the dignity which characterized him when he presided over the Senate of the United States. He comes to look after some funds which are supposed to have been smuggled away by some of the rebel agents. I am afraid he will find that the remains of the cotton loan is not available for the use of the Richmond Cabinet. He is too late. J P Benjamin now a member of the English bar, was sharp enough to get three or four thousand pounds, which he claimed as unpaid salary. He got the money last week. What remains is fast going upon "Baden Baden" and in other pursuits. Poor Wigfall is here, too and has brought all his family with him. His errand was the same and his friends at the Langham say that he looks very dejected, seedy and disappointed.

Thirty two years ago, remarks the New York Tribune, when Douglas left his Green Mountain home for Illinois, his great rival, Lincoln, was keeping a postoffice, fresh from the glories of the Black Hawk war; Andrew Johnson was Mayor of a little mountain town in Tennessee, Jefferson Davis a lieutenant of dragoons, was chasing the Indians. Seward was grieving over his defeat as Governor. Breckinridge was studying the orations of Cicero against Cataline at a Kentucky College. Chase was endeavoring to gain a law practice in Cincinnati. Sumner was entering the Boston bar. Broderick was cutting stone. Grant was a schoolboy in his teens, and Farragut was watching the honor of his flag on the torrid coast of Brazil.

> Should the President ever succumb to the wishes of the dominant party in Congress, he would deserve the eternal condemnation of every friend of the Union and the Constitution in the country.—Herald, Sept 23d.

Congress is not only endorsed by the people, but another Congress, as much like the present one as may be, only a little more radical, will assemble in 1867. Will the President refuse to succumb to the wishes of the dominant party in Congress now that that party is sustained by an overwhelming majority of the people? Or will he yield, and by so doing call down upon his head the "eternal condemnation" of the Democracy? It is very evident that he must surrender to the "Radicals" and take the chances of being crushed by the displeasure of those who have been entreating him not to "succumb."

The theatre in which Mr Lincoln was assassinated is in process of alteration, and not a vestige of the box in which he was shot is there now. So the Marshall House in Alexandria where poor young Ellsworth met his death [illegible] so early is being renovated so as to leave no trace of the past.

The United States war steamer Pensacola sailed on the 14th of September for the South Pacific, where joining the squadron, she will be employed as the flag ship of Admiral Pearson. Her commander is John L. Worden.

Dr. Paul F Eve professor of surgery in the University at Louisville, has written a pamphlet upon the health of the late rebel army. He gives it as his opinion that tobacco and whisky were the causes of its ruin.

It is positively announced that the new paper of San Francisco—the Times—will make its appearance on the 5th of next month.

Is your hair gray, loose or brashy? try the Martha Washington and be astonished and delighted.

Valuable and Reliable.—Brown's Bronchial Troches will be found invaluable to those exposed to sudden changes affording prompt relief in cases of Coughs, Colds etc. For Public Speakers and Singers and those who overtax the voice they are useful [illegible]. As there are imitations be sure and obtain the genuine.

GOOD NEWS FROM MONTANA.—From the appearance of the miners who are returning from Blackfoot [illegible] mining districts of Montana we should judge that the mines have turned out remarkably well as they certainly make a large deposit of the [illegible] at the St Louis Store No 1[illegible] Front street and receive an [illegible] excellent clothing such as Messrs Kohn & Fisher always keep. Everybody can be suited both as to style and quality and strictly at San Francisco prices.

Strange Event.—As the steamer Oriflamme was on her way to this port the following singular occurrence was noted: When the steamer was off the mouth of the Umpqua river the attention of the officers was attracted by the sight of shoals of fish crossing the course of the ship. They seemed to move in a dense shoal. Myriads of these fish seemed to fill the water, and apparently undisturbed by the vicinity of the ship, moved on their course. They were supposed to be sun fish, and if so were supposed to be young, and from banks situated in the [illegible]. They seemed to be from a foot to eighteen inches in length, with a well formed head, resembling in shape that of a flounder or sole. The tail was perfectly shaped and seemed to have a fringe-like substance surrounding it. The opinion seems to be that in the vicinity are situated soundings from which they come. If this is so valuable fisheries may be found. None of the fish were taken for the reason that the ship was not provided with the necessary nets—no difficulty would have been found in taking great numbers had they been prepared.—The shoals could be seen upon the water far ahead, and their course distinctly traced. We hope to hear more of the matter, and that if the ship again meets them they will be able to take some that we may see them and learn more about them.

Saw Accident.—A severe and painful accident occurred at the mill of Messrs. Carter, Hayden & Co., on yesterday morning, in which Mr. Wm. H. Carter lost his left hand. Mr. Carter was acting as screw turner, and his position was at the screw nearest the saw. The log had been turned down and they were sawing off the slab side. The saw had just run through and the man at the other end was endeavoring to remove the slab, when Mr. Carter stepped across the carriage to help him; he stooped across the saw to take hold of the slab and had grasped it when his left hand swung down across the saw and was cut off immediately above the joint at the wrist. Mr. Carter [illegible] of much nerve, as he walked from the mill to [illegible] to have the wound attended to, and awaited the arrival of Dr. Glitner who performed the operation. Mr. Carter is getting along finely.

Runaway.—A horse attached to a wagon, both the property of a green grocer up town, getting tired of standing and switching his tail in front of the grocer's establishment, concluded to go on a voyage of discovery, and immediately levanted at a rapid rate up First street. Finding the street not suitable for a general smash up, he jumped a chain upon the sidewalk and went thundering over the boards at 2:45 or less. A young and handsome lady was just in the act of crossing the sidewalk when the horse and wagon came thundering on. She made an attempt to get through a gate before the wagon came up, but was too late to pass through gracefully. In her haste she fell inside the gate, and was covered with dust, raised by the horse in passing. Her attire was deeply damaged and her feelings unstrung [illegible]. At last accounts the horse was still running.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—N. H. Register.

Insane.—We learn that Mrs. Maria Schultz of this city has been deranged for some time, yet not at all violent as she has been allowed her freedom up to this time. She took passage on the Pacific for San Francisco. When the vessel reached Astoria the officers of the ship found that she was crazy and unaccompanied. They accordingly set her ashore where she remained until the arrival of the Oriflamme when she was sent up to this city. Yesterday morning she was sent to the Insane Asylum.

Recorder's Court.—Before His Honor yesterday a man named Warren appeared, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct on First street. He was sent to jail for two days.—The dog case was continued on account of the absence of the prosecuting witness, who is supposed to have absented himself that the case may be dismissed for want of evidence. It will come up again to-day.

Auction Sale.—We learn of an auction sale held at Salem on last Saturday by our voluble friend, Mr. [illegible]. The real estate sold consisted of lots [illegible] in block 3, together with store upon the premises. The property brought $900. Afterward the stock [illegible] groceries were sold. The sale attracted [illegible].

The Dalles.—The Wilson G. Hunt brought from the Cascades a large crowd of passengers. Among them we noticed a number of immigrants with four wagons and [illegible]. Most of the passengers were miners, yet a good [illegible] of our up-country friends on their way to the State Fair at Salem.

Sheriff's Sale Postponed.—The Sheriff's sale of the [illegible] Senator Perry, two scow boats, implements [illegible] pavement, &c., did not come off yesterday [illegible]. The sale will be held to-day at 10 o'clock in front of the old Court House.

[illegible].—The steamer Senator did not arrive till last evening. She was delayed by waiting for the [illegible] above. She brought 492 qr sks flour, 299 sks oats, [illegible] trunks, 1 chest, 9 bales woolen goods, 12 boxes and 1 keg brandy.

Due.—The steamer Montana from San Francisco, and the Active from Victoria, are now due and are looked for hourly. The Montana was seen by the Oriflamme the [illegible] out from San Francisco. She had Government [illegible] which may detain her at Astoria.

Catholic Fair.—We learn that a Catholic fair will be held the 24th proximo at Oro Fino Hall. The fair will last four days. On the last evening a ball will be given.

Sale of Mason's Brewery.—We call special attention to the important auction sale in East Portland to-day. For further particulars see Richardson's column.

Treasure.—Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger brought down last evening $88,000 in treasure.

Political Speculations.—A New York letter to the Cincinnati Commercial gives the following speculations about the objects and purposes of the President's tour:

Politicians of every stripe are exercising their powers of speculation over the antics of the Johnson-Seward acrobats, as performed en route between Washington and St. Louis. Different theories are held on the respective positions of the chief actors; but all are settling down in the conviction that Seward is playing the role of "the coming man." It is suggested that New York's statesman is chalking out a programme, which, divested of all diplomatic rubbish, would seem to run, thus: (Seward loquitur; the time being just before the caravan started from Washington):

"Grant is popular. He is in many mouths as a [illegible] for the next Presidency. Grant must, therefore, be killed off. Johnson must help me do it; in fact must do it. I shall advise that Grant and Farragut be invited to take part in our traveling show. Johnson is already as good as dead (but yet speaketh), and his services must be had, as long as he can be used, that his suicide may be complete, and Grant's annihilation made certain.

"The people will suspect Grant for his seeming lust to Johnson's policy by traveling with him, and will conclude that, after all, he is not a fit person to be intrusted with the Presidency next time.

"Johnson will, of course, say many mad and impolitic things.

"I will say nothing that is not nonsense. In fine, on grave matters of policy I will say nothing.

"I will only speak on general principles, upon which the people are united any way.

"By the time our party shall have returned to Washington, the corner-stone will be laid for my personal friends to spring the trap on my record and my services.

"Johnson having by that time said so many things that I would never think of inspiring, and which shall have contributed to the cementing of the Radical sentiment, I will take issue with him on the ground that he counseled revolution and civil war, North and South, for the sake of his policy; resign my seat in the cabinet, giving the country my reasons in a letter; be embraced by my old friends, with eclat, and become the available candidate for the next Presidency, Johnson being politically defunct and Grant being under eclipse.

"I will then be the nominee, and then—William H. Seward will be President."

There are hopeful friends and bitter enemies of Seward who read the foregoing plan in the line of conduct he has been and is pursuing. How plausible the theory and how possible its realization, others can judge as easily as I. That there is method in the madness wherewith he acts the fool throughout the President's "progress," no one who knows him can doubt; but we must wait to see its full development.

Nevada.—The following is the Union ticket of Nevada. Of course it will be triumphantly elected:

For Governor, H. G. Blasdel; for Lieutenant Governor, J. S. [illegible]; for Member of Congress, D. R. Ashley; for Judge of the Supreme Court, Alfred Helm; for Attorney General, Robert M. Clarke; for Secretary of State, C. N. Noteware; for State Treasurer, E. Rhoades; for State Controller, W. K. Parkinson; for Superintendent of Public Instruction, A. N. Fisher; for Surveyor General, S. H. Marlette; for State Printer, J. M. Eckley; for District Judge of the Second Judicial District, S. H. Wright.

Like Brilliants on Dress Parade, the Teeth should always be scrupulously clean and free from blemish. Keep them in this condition with the incomparable Sozodont, and when they are veterans in the service, they will still be "as good as new."

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Summons.

I expect you in September,
With the glory of the year;
You shall make the Autumn precious
And the death of Summer dear;
You shall help the days that shorten
With the lengthening of delight;
You shall whisper long-drawn blisses
Through the gathering screen of night.

I will lead you, dream-enchanted,
Where the fairest grasses grow;
I will hear your murmured music
Where the fresh winds pipe and blow.
On the brown heath, weird-encircled,
Shall our noiseless footsteps fall—
We communing with twin counsel,
Each to other all in all.

Leave the titles that men own thee;
Like the first pair let us meet;
Name the world all over to me,
New-created at thy feet;
Gentle task and duteous learning,
I will hang upon thy breath
With the tender zeal of childhood,
With the constancy of death.

What shall be the gods declare not,—
They who stamp Love's burning coin
Into spangles of a moment,
Into stars that deathless shine.
Only the foolish music lingers;
For the theme is heavenly dear;
I expect you in September,
With the glories of the year.

In Advance of the Telegraph.

President Johnson, who thoroughly appreciates our efforts to make the public familiar with his policy and character, has kindly forwarded us the rough notes of the speech he intends to make upon his arrival at Chicago. As this speech greatly differs from those which the Chief Magistrate has been making since he left the Capital, we shall take the liberty of laying his notes before our readers. Of course, in perusing them, it will be borne in mind that they are very crudely drawn up, and will, doubtless, be much elaborated before delivery, receiving those oratorical graces which the President knows how to bestow, and that eloquent, simple and manly garb in which the President usually clothes the thoughts which he spreads before a listening Nation. The distinguished Magistrate, always fond of system in his addresses, and ever desirous of avoiding repetition, has numbered his paragraphs. His manuscript reads as follows:—

1. He who addresses you is a Humble Individual.

2. I have filled all the offices which the Nation has to bestow, from Alderman up to President of the United States.

3. I am very much abused by a subsidized, corrupt and mendacious press.

4 Pardon my alluding to myself, but I beg leave to inform you, that I commenced as an Alderman of one of the small towns of this Nation; I went from that to Mayor, from that to the Legislature, from that to the House of Representatives, and from that to the Senate of the United States, from that to the Presidential chair.

5. I am no traitor;—Mr. Seward is no traitor; nobody that supports My Policy is a traitor.

6. I have no wish to be egotistic but I must say that I have occupied all the places from Alderman up to the position I now occupy,—President of the United States.

7. The members of Congress who oppose My Policy are all traitors; everybody who opposes My Policy is a traitor.

8. It is not my habit to make mention of myself but it is perhaps my duty to say that I have been an Alderman, a Mayor, a State Senator, a Representative, a Senator of the United States Senate, and now I am President. What more do I want?

9. The Union party may go to the devil.

10. My ambition is satisfied. First I was an Alderman, then a Mayor, then a member of a State Senate, then member of the House of Representatives, then a member of the United States Senate, and at this moment I am President of the United States.

11. Seward is my friend and I am Seward's friend; Seward likes me and I like Seward; Seward is a good fellow and I am a good fellow; we like each other.

I have served my country in all capacities. I began life as an Alderman, was a Mayor during my infancy, was State Senator in my childhood, became a Representative in my early youth, attained my majority as a Senator of United States, and now, in the prime of my manhood, am President.

Who wants niggers to vote? If the Northern States want niggers to vote why don't they let them vote at home? Niggers shan't vote. I desire them to have the same chance as white men.

14. Perhaps you are not aware, fellow-citizens that I have been an Alderman a Mayor, a State Senator, a Representative, a United States Senator, and finally President of the United States.

15. The Congressmen who voted for the Freedmen's Bureau bill and the Civil Rights bill are all fools. I'd like to fight the whole one hundred and eighty-two of them.

16. It is a matter of history that after being an Alderman, a Mayor, a State Senator, a member of the House of Representatives, a United States Senator, I became President. Lincoln was assassinated and Seward butchered, and so I became President.

17. I have great confidence in the American people, all except Members of Congress, Unionists and Niggers; they are all traitors, and I mean to fight them with the help of General Grant.

18. Nobody ever held so many offices as I have. I have filled all the various positions in life, such as Alderman, Mayor, State Senator, Member of Congress, United States Senator, and at length I was made President.

19. I repeat that Seward is a good fellow; he stands by me, and I stand by him; I am not afraid of a subsidized and mercenary press; all loyal people may go to the devil; the Baltimore platform is my platform; Douglas was a friend of mine; I am going to erect a monument over him; I am not upon an electioneering tour; I havn't punished any Southern traitors; but I mean to make it up by punishing lots of Northern traitors; every man who don't go for me is a traitor; I am no traitor; I can't be a traitor, because I have been an Alderman, then a Mayor, then a State Senator, then a Representative, then a member of the United States Senate and then President.

Our readers will observe how much unlike all the President's previous speeches this noble effusion will be. They will admire with us the versatility, the many-sidedness of the Presidential character. They will admire with us that wonderful flow of thoughts and words, of ideas and images, of similes and metaphors, which sets off his remarks. They will admire with us that singularly pure taste, that unaffected modesty, that lofty patriotism, that respect for his opponents, that regard for the law-making body, which characterize this Chicago address as they have characterized all his previous addresses. They will unite with us in thanking him for forwarding us so much in advance of the telegraph, an abstract of this most admirable and most concise of all his admirable and concise speeches.—Syracuse Journal.

The President Wept.—Mr. Johnson, who is somewhat given to talking about himself, said in his speech at Washington on Saturday, that he was affected to tears when he received a despatch announcing the entrance of the Massachusetts and South-Carolina delegations, arm in arm, to the Philadelphia Convention. There was another occasion when Andrew Johnson shed tears. At the time of Gen. Rosecrans removal from the command of the Army of the Cumberland, Mr. Johnson was at Louisville in consultation with Secretary Stanton. On his return to Nashville, he met Gen. Rosecrans at the Bacon Creek bridge, the latter being on his way to Cincinnati. The rebels had destroyed the bridge, which caused some delay there. The soldiers present took advantage of this circumstance, to pay their respects to their favorite General. Mr. Johnson, at the same time, approached Gen. Rosecrans, hat in hand, and, with tears rolling down his cheeks, told him how deeply he regretted and how much he disapproved of his removal. This exhibition of tenderness and sympathy might have brought tears from the war-worn general, also, had he not been fully advised while at Nashville, on his way from Chattanooga, of the persistent efforts of Mr. Johnson to bring about the result which he professed, even with tears, to deplore. We recollect, on a subsequent occasion, when Mr. Johnson had become President, hearing Gen. Rosecrans, in his usual earnest manner, warning his friends not to trust "Andy Johnson."—Cincinnati Gazette.

The New Chicago Telescope.—The Chicago Tribune, speaking of the Clark telescope, says:

The great equatorial telescope at Dearborn Observatory, after a number of mishaps to the machinery of the dome in which it is mounted, may now be regarded as in perfect working order. Its great powers have been tested by Professor Safford, and its reputation established by several astronomical discoveries. Professor Safford himself has recently received the diploma of Associate of the Royal Astronomical Society of London—an honor bestowed only upon the highest order of merit, and one which is worn at the present time by only four Americans—Professors Pierce, Gould, Bache and Safford. There is every reason to look for the most important results to science from the great equatorial, and the profound mathematician who has been secured as the director of the Dearborn Observatory.

Position of General Grant as Stated by Himself

The refusal of General Grant to respond to the invitation of a political Club at Cincinnati was clearly in keeping with the policy which he, in common with Lieutenant General Sherman and other prominent officers of the army and navy, have constantly pursued. They desire to keep aloof from all political conflicts or complications. The special correspondent of the Chicago Republican telegraphs to that paper the following statement which he was authorized to make public by General Grant himself, and it is the most reasonable as well as the fullest account of the General's position yet published:

In about a minute afterward General Grant, who had been into the President's car to present himself to the people assembled at West Junction, re-entered the car, and having seated himself beckoned to me to come and speak with him. I did so, and, on seating myself by his side, he went on to say that he thought that if I published the account already submitted to him, he would like it to be understood that he had refused to receive the proposed demonstration entirely, because he felt it his duty to refuse any reception or demonstration tendered separately to himself while traveling with the President, or to do anything which might be construed as favoring any political party. He then went on to reiterate his determination not to be used by those who sought to commit him either for or against the President's policy, or to attach any political significance to his presence on the President's excursion. He had also been much annoyed at the use which had been made of his name by John Hogan, who had presumed to state that General Grant was politically with the President, and on one similar occasion by Seward; he felt that it was, above all things, desirable for officers of the army to avoid participation in ordinary political conflicts except that it was their duty as citizens to support only men who could show a record of constant loyalty. Whether a man's sentiments were Johnsonian or Republican, he said he felt that it was an insult to any loyal man to ask him to vote for any candidate who was not a loyal man in 1861. In this connection, he said that, without expressing any views of his own for or against the Johnson policy, he yet felt it to be a misfortune for Johnson that the advocates of his policy in the States through which we had just passed, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, had in some instances put upon their ticket men who in 1861 and 1862 had been guilty of known disloyalty to the Government; because (and this was said in a very emphatic manner) he felt that to ask men whose sons had shed their blood for the Union to vote for men who had been disloyal to it, was the greatest insult that could be offered. Southern men he could make allowances for, and he could ride through the South and get out on a platform and shake hands in friendship with such men as Lee, Johnson, or Forrest, because, though they had been almost educated into secession, they come now truly honest and loyal in their adherence to the Union, and were seeking to strengthen it. But he did not feel in that way toward Northern men who had once been disloyal, and neither desired to associate with them nor have them for his friends. No such men should have his support, nor ought they to be supported by Johnson's friends throughout the Northern States. He particularly instanced, as a specimen of this objectionable class of men, Heister Clymer, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, saying that to ask any soldier to vote for such a man, of at one time known disloyalty, against another who had served four years in the Union army, with credit to himself and benefit to his country, was a gross insult. If men desired to support Johnson's policy let them, but at all events let them vote only for such men as were true to their country in 1861.

The President's Insult to Cleveland.—Johnson's speech at Cleveland deeply mortified and offended the Union men, many of whom had assembled to give him, as President, an honorable and respectful reception. The Cleveland Leader thus speaks for the majority of the citizens:

We hear Copperheads on our streets loudly complaining that the President was insulted by the cries and cheers of the crowd which listened to him Monday night. In our judgment, instead of the people of Cleveland insulting the President, the President offered a grave insult to the people of Cleveland. The President, while here was the guest of the city. He came ostensibly on no political errand, and he was accompanied by naval and military heroes whom the nation delights to honor. In respect to his office, and in honor to those who accompanied him, the hospitalities of the city were extended to him by its Republican city government. Every tax-payer of Cleveland, whether Johnson or anti-Johnson in sympathy, shared in the expense of entertaining the President, and thus he was under obligation to each one of them as their guest. Under these circumstances it was Johnson's obvious duty, not only out of respect to his official dignity as President, but out of respect to the political position of the majority of our people, to abstain entirely from political references. But instead of doing this, he went out of his way to do the opposite. He fulfilled our worst anticipations, and those radicals who were engaged in getting up the reception must have experienced extreme mortification and shame at the use which he made of their hospitalities. Well knowing that the city, whose guest he was, was overwhelmingly radical; well knowing that the gentleman who introduced him was a radical; well knowing that the City Council, whose members surrounded him, were two to one radical, he proceeded, with unblushing effrontery, to appropriate the honors paid to his office to political and personal purposes. He commenced a bitter political harangue, every word of which was an insult to his radical hosts. This was bad enough; but this was not the worst. Even a decent and temperate political speech would have been most undignified and inappropriate in view of the occasion, the position of the speaker and the character of the audience. But the President's harangue was not even decent. His denunciation of Wendell Phillips and Thad. Stevens by name as traitors; his insolent and revolutionary attacks upon Congress as a "factious, domineering, usurping body," which is trying to break up the Government;" his defiant declaration that those who differed from him were "Northern traitors," "greater traitors than Jeff. Davis," and that he was "ready to fight traitors at the North;" worst of all, his call upon the mob to hang Wendell Phillips and Thaddeus Stevens would have been outrageous from any mouth—from that of the President of the United States they were simply atrocious.

We have heard men who during the war demonstrated their respect for the Presidential station by calling our beloved Abraham Lincoln the "Illinois ape," and our soldiers "Lincoln's hirelings," and "Lincoln's pups;" we have heard such men as these, we say, complaining of the want of respect shown for the President by the crowd that listened to him Monday night. We are, on the contrary, inclined to compliment that audience for its forbearance. When the President forgets his official dignity and prostitutes his official position—when he abandons the chair of state and "takes the stump;" when he insults his hosts, by stigmatizing them as traitors, and inciting a mob to hang their cherished leaders, he throws away all claim to respect or consideration as President. Under the provocation which our people endured, under the insults which they received, we were pleased to know that they were so forbearing. Had a loyal man gone to New Orleans and addressed the President's rebel friends in that city in terms one-half as violent as those used by Johnson Monday night we know from sad precedents that he would have been murdered before he could had concluded his speech. A Cleveland audience is not made of New Orleans stuff and the President knew he could trust its moderation, or he would not have dared to test it. We regard the manner of Monday night's throng as one of extreme toleration under grievous insult, and we thank the people that they were so moderate and forbearing.

Gen. Wade Hampton, in his late speech, complains that Mr. Doolittle's Convention didn't pass resolutions commending the patriotism and valor of the Confederate soldiers. For once our sympathies are with the General. He knew, as well as we know, that the omission was occasioned merely by a lack of moral courage, and he naturally despises those who let "I dare not wait upon I would, like the cat in the adage." They have been on pretty short rations down yonder for some time; and they naturally like something for diet which is either flesh, fish or fowl. But let them be patient! The tough old ladies who made up the Convention will day by day grow warmer and warmer. So much virtue cannot be expected to surrender in the twinkling of an eye.

Illustrious Cottages.—Robert Burns' cottage at Alloway is advertised for sale, and the Inverness Courier says:—"The cottage, literally a clay-built thatched hut, remains in much the same condition in which it was left by the poet's father, built with his own hands in December, 1757, thirteen months before the birth of his illustrious son; but since that time two rooms and a large hall have been added, communicating with the cottage. Some persons, we hear, are willing to give about £2,000 for the house and land, in order that they may be kept in a creditable manner, and that the cottage of the pious father of the 'Cotter's Saturday Night' may be saved from further degradation."

Another Suppressed Dispatch.—The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Tribune says the following was among the dispatches sent to General Grant by General Sheridan, and which was not published with the others:

Headquarters, Military Division of the Gulf, August 13, 1865.

To General U. S. Grant, Washington (D. C.): The Military Board called by General Baird to investigate the occurrences in this city of July 30th is progressing as rapidly as possible. I see in the papers, by reports of officials here, an attempt is made to cast blame upon the military for not being present on the 30th ultimo. There could have been no object in being present, except to prevent the police from perpetrating a revolting massacre. Its absence, for this reason, I regret. From reports of my own scouts, who saw the affair from first to last from my own office, from disinterested and faithful persons, I believe that nine-tenths of the casualties were perpetrated by the police, the citizens stabbing and smashing in the heads of many who had been already wounded or killed by policemen,

P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major General Commanding.

Irrepressible Conflict in Missouri.—The St. Louis Republican has the following, dated Jefferson City, September 11th: Gen. Thomas L. Price received a printed circular, which was dropped in the Postoffice here to-day, headed; "To all who were rebels, traitors, sympathizers, and their friends, during the war," setting forth that, "We, the loyal and Union American Avengers of Missouri, in Grand Council assembled, make the following propositions." The circular then proceeds in a long preamble to make certain charges of outrages committed during the war, ringing the changes of Andersonville, Belle Isle, Memphis, New Orleans, etc., and then announces the object and intentions of the organization, concluding as follows: "We are ready for any emergency which you may bring upon us. The mine is laid in 60 counties of this State, and if you spring it, we will (burst) you into atoms and give you a little by way of interest on the old score. Remember 1862. Be warned, and control the viciousness of your—fiendish party, or death and desolation will follow the L. & U. A. Avengers. Done by order Grand Council of L. & U. A. A., State of Missouri. Approved by Leader in Chief, District of Missouri."

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters should be in the possession of everybody in the mining regions. As a preventive of various dangerous diseases to which the gold seeker is liable, it has no superior. While it is quite palatable even as a beverage, it is speedy and powerful in its effects upon the system. In all cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery, and the prevailing fevers consequent upon exposure, the Bitters will be found invaluable as a corrective. No man should enter upon the exposed life of a miner without being provided with Hostetter's preventive of stomach disease, nor should any of those who are now engaged in the occupation, fail to have recourse to the Bitters. ### Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

Artificial light of some sort, is a universal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas burner for less than ½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.

I am still obliged to accept of Legal Tender Notes at Portland have been since Dec. 17, 1862, for the rent of my Handsome Brick Store, corner of Morrison and Front streets, I feel compelled to announce for the benefit of the public, that

JACOB MAYER

Leased the building of me Feb. 17, 1862, for a term of years, at which time there was no such currency in vogue, and it was understood the terms were Cash. Since the date above stated, I have received the depreciated currency regularly for the rent of the making less than two-fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay. He had secured the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in Coin would be getting the best bargain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be to take such undue advantages of the times to convert a few dollars to himself by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can readily see how much it costs to have such tenants in such costly buildings as the one referred to above.

Portland, July 6, 1866. G. W. VAUGHN.

The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
